

INDEX

To the Remarkable Passages in this Volume.

N.B. To find any particular Book, or Pamphlet, see the Table of Contents prefixed to the Volume.

A.

D'ALEMBERT, his remorse on his death-bed, 483.

Alompra, characteristic account of, 441.

Alphabets, origin of, 71.

Arabs of the Desert, vindicated from the charge of wanton barbarity brought against them by Brisson, 260. Striking instance of the fidelity with which they discharge the duties of hospitality and protection, 447.

Arch of Constantine and Meta Sudante, described, 267.

Aristeas's History of the Translation of the Hebrew Scriptures into Greek, arguments for and against the authenticity of, 95, 100.

B.

Bacchus, conjecture concerning, 264.

Bacon, Roger, or Friar Bacon, brief account of, 300.

Baptism. See Freud.

Bagdad, some account of, 448; and gross instance of the tyranny of a Turkish minister there, ib.

Bannerman, Miss, grandly introduces elemental agents at the formation of the world,

407. Her genii, both terrific and beneficent beings, 408. Her skill in contrasting effect, 409.

Bartolameo, Fra. Paolino, a few memorials of him as a religious missionary, 68, &c.

Benlomon, description of, 337.

Berkeley, the late Rev. Dr. some curious particulars relative to his sermons, 217. Titles of the sermons, with short extracts and remarks, 218.

Berwick upon Tweed, ancient history of, 108.

-----, entertaining account given by Pope Pius II. of the inhabitants about 1488, 110.

-----, character of its present inhabitants, 112.

-----, present prices of labour there, 112.

Birman Empire, historical account of, 439, 444. Its criminal jurisprudence, 502. The royal household described, ib. Extent of its territories, 503. Titles assumed by the monarch, 505.

Bossuet, the celebrated French funeral orator, panegyricized by D'Alembert, 142.

Bozules, Mr. his picture of the extortionate proceedings of the

INDEX.

the French in Switzerland, 386. Exposes the fatal consequences of a timid policy from the dread of a French invasion of this country, 387.

Boyd, Mr. arguments for and against his being the author of the Letters of Junius, 347.

British Constitution, Mr. Watson's description of the, 173.

Bryant, Mr. denies, and argues against, the history of the Trojan war to have any foundation in truth, 303, 309, 391, 399. Remarks thereon, ib.

Bull-dog, the, described, 381.

C.

Cadmus, ingenious disquisition on the name, giving it new light and meaning, 263.

Chartered companies, account of them, 518.

Chatham, the late Lord, his celebrated speech in condemnation of employing Indians in war, 349.

Christ, some passages of his life dramatically exhibited, 119. His lamentation over Jerusalem finely depicted, 214.

Christianity, its internal evidence a proof of its divine origin, 16.

-----, its records defended from the imputations of modern sceptics, 118.

Circus Maximus, and its magnificence, account of the, 209.

Clairon, Madame, strangely haunted after the death of a discarded lover, 152. Her remarks on the use of white paint recommended to the notice of actresses and many ladies of fashion, ib.

Coal-mines, Mr. Kirwan's opinion of their origin, 129.

Combustion, chemically considered, 402.

Column of Trajan described, 268.

Constantine, in persecuting heathens, departed from the spirit of christianity, 456.

Correa de Serra, Joseph, some account of his paper on a sub-marine forest on the east coast of England, 57.

Coptic monasteries, description of four, 357.

Criminal conversation, expedient proposed to check its progress, 188; animadverted upon, ib.

D.

Danes, their honourable claim of carrying into execution the first agricultural establishment in Africa, for instructing the negroes in the cultivation of their soil, 261. Controverted, ib.

Daubuz, a sketch of the manner in which he has applied scriptural prophecies to events confessedly past, 206. Coincides in Mr. Medes's idea of the prophecy respecting the little book, 209.

Deluge, a general, Mr. Kirwan's geological proofs of, 127.

Depredations in and near London, their supposed amount enormous, 222. Interesting accounts of embezzlements on the river, and of the practices of the coiners of counterfeit money, 222, 223.

Directory, the late, of France, M. de Moleville's remarkable prophecy respecting, 38.

E.

Earth, short description of the, 164.

Eden, Dr. Worthington's conjecture as to its situation, 165.

Egalité (the late Duke of Orleans), his dastardly spirit exposed, 39.

Egypt,

INDEX.

Egypt, extract from a paper relating to its antiquities, 358.

Elephanta, some particulars relating to the celebrated cavern there, 437.

Elijah, or Elias, abbreviation of the scriptural history of, 165. Strictures thereon, 166.

Established Church, advantageous to a state, 255.

F.

Female mind, importance of detaching it from frivolous pursuits, 340.

Fever, characteristic symptoms of, &c. &c. See Wilson.

Fox, Mr. John, his method of improving a large portion of waste land at Box-hill, 62.

French character, admirable delineation of the, 142.

French Revolution, what is comprehended in this expression, 37.

-----, efficient causes whence it originated, 38.

Frend, his letter to the Bishop of Lincoln on baptism, 290. His positions on the same subject examined, 292.

G.

Geographers, errors of the ancient and modern, 69.

Gibbon, Mr. visited by Webster, 319.

Gobet, the constitutional bishop of Paris, curious anecdote of, respecting his intrigue and hypocrisy, 42.

Gospel, its history never intended by the Evangelists to be tried by the needless test of a harmony, 424.

Gospels, the times when they were written, controverted, 483.

Graves, the Rev. Rd. biographical sketch of, 1.

Great Britain, Mr. Kirwan's hypothesis of its separation from the Continent and from Ireland, 128.

Great Britain, proved, by incontrovertible documents, and arguments, to have had no concern whatever in the conference at Pilnitz, and to have declined war, till it was not in her power to avoid a rupture with France, whose rulers had resolved on one, 237.

Gregory, Dr. John, character of, 162.

Guinea, North, or Nigritia, described, 260.

Gymnastic exercises recommended to seminaries for the education of youth, 256.

H.

Hastings, Mr. remarks on the prolixity of the speeches of the managers on his trial, 330.

Harweis, the Rev. Dr. on the true church of Christ, 295, 6; on church government, 296. Remarks thereon, 297.

Heavens and the Earth, the, graciously clothed with such colours as are most refreshing to the sight, 414.

Hebrew text and Greek version of the Bible, the preferable claims of the former to credibility, in the articles of genealogy and chronology, to those of the latter, asserted, and amply discussed, 198, 310.

Heron, Mr. his novel doctrine respecting the deluge, 390; animal life, ib.

Hindus, their corporal frame, intellectual, moral, and religious character, 433. Antiquity of their civilization, 434. Their sufferings from Mamhood

INDEX.

Mamhood the First, and Tamerlane, 435.

Humbert, Gen. character of, 247.

I. and J.

Illuminism, Dr. Haweis's sentiments concerning, 301.

Jacob, notations respecting the persons who accompanied him into Egypt, 203.

Jargonia, M. Brisson's account of, 532.

Johnson, Dr. defective in feeling for the higher kinds of poetry, 132.

_____, two anecdotes of, 186.

_____, his sublime reflections on the ruins of Iona, 340.

Jourdan, Gen. his idea of the political views of the House of Austria, 369. His plan of the campaign for 1799, 370.

K.

Kames, Lord, brief account of, 162.

Kirwan, Mr. his remarks on the tests of fixed air, 411.

L.

Lambs at play, beautiful poetic description of, 325.

Laws, the criminal, of England, their severity done away by the wise and clement administration of them, 254.

Liberty, Mr. C. Yorke's reflections on the spirit of, 232.

Life, micro-animal, most fancifully delineated, 325.

Light, chemically considered, 401.

M.

Malayala, population of, 70.

Marine Police Institution, extremely prominent as a wise measure of government, 525.

Masillon, the celebrated French preacher, sketch of his powers, and specimen of his oratory, 141.

Maurice, the Rev. Mr. his poetical description of the ancient rites celebrated in the Mithratic cavern, 453. Extract from his 'Crisis,' &c. 434.

Mirabeau, the late Count, extract from his admirable speech respecting the intercepting private correspondence, 40.

_____, his attachment to the French monarchy, and project to support it, 41.

More, Miss, remarks on the observations in her Essay on Female Education respecting marriage, 5; false delicacy, idleness, simplicity, dissipation, and the modern habits of fashionable life, 6; public amusements, a worldly spirit inconsistent with the spirit of Christianity, the leading doctrines of Christianity, 7; the duty and efficacy of prayer, 10.

Mosco, Mr. Tooke's account of the Foundling House there, 536.

Moses, less observant of perspicuous arrangement than classical authors in subsequent ages, 196.

N.

Nitric Acid, its pretended advantages over mercury in the cure of the venereal disease brought to the test, 341.

O.

Obeirne, Bishop of Meath, pathetic extract from his sermon on Christ's lamentation over Jerusalem, 214. Extracts from the impressive invocation of another on the dispersion of the enemy's fleet, and the deliverance of Ireland from threatened invasion, 215.

Opossum, the Flying, of New Holland, described, 497.

Palmer,

INDEX.

P.

- Palmer*, poetic description of the, 352.
- Paper*, proposed to be made of lawns manufactured from the fibrous pellicle of nettles, 60.
- Pegue*, Major Symes's account of its inhabitants, 499.
- Pericles*, account of his death, 229. Some characteristic particulars of him, 230.
- Peter I. of Russia*, instance of his barbarity, 535.
- Philosophers*, modern strictures on their conduct, 479.
- Poland*, observations on the shameful partition of, 329.
- Public Events of consequence*, the greater number have their source in private pique or private interest, 337.
- Public Funeral Rites* of persons fallen in battle, how performed at Athens, 102.
- Pudiceri*, some account of the Popish seminary there, 68.
- Pythagoras*, account of his opinions, discoveries, &c. 104. Farther particulars relating to him, 225. Ingenious disquisition concerning his language of the music or harmony of the spheres, 226. His deep astronomical researches, 228. Maxims, &c. 229.

R.

- Rangoon*, the boats in use there described, 500.
- Reason*, the common ground of religious controversy between believers and unbelievers, 116.
- Revenues*, state of the British in India, 70.
- Revolutionary Principles*, curious effect of in Malabar, 72.
- Rochefoucault Liancourt*, the Duc de la, his observations on the laws of Connecticut, in New England, 416; and conversation with a Jesuit,

417. The manners of the Americans described, 418.

Rollers, flannel, far preferable to those of linen or cotton in binding up wounds, 252.

Rosamond, the famous mistress of Hen. II. some historical particulars of, 175.

Royal Society, account of its formation and incorporation, 148.

Russians, state of their manners in the 16th century, 533.

S.

Salt-Laws, observations on their impolicy, 338.

Samiel, or hot winds, their wonderful operation and effect, 448.

Seasons, singularly different in Malabar and Coromandel, although in the same latitude, and having the sun nearly alike vertical, 69.

Semele, conjectured etymology of the name, 264.

Sieyes, the Abbé, to what he probably owes his present dignity, and striking instance of his versatility, 41.

Slave Trade, St. Pierre's sentiments concerning it; and his account of the negroes carried to the Isle of France, 529.

Smerdis, on the refinements of Greece, 356.

Smith, Mr. Adam, the sum of his theory of moral sentiments, 163.

Snodgrass, Dr. his mode of applying scriptural prophecies to past events, 206. Rejects Mr. Mede's idea of the prophecy respecting the little book, ib.

Society of Arts, Manufactures, and Commerce, premiums offered by them for making cloth from hop-stalks or bines, 50—for making paper from raw vegetable substances, 60.

Socrates,

INDEX

Socrates, outline of his character, 231.

Solar tropical Year, its duration differently assigned by astronomers, 125.

Stronbin, M. Brisson's account of, 531.

Svedes, assertion of their claim to the glory of having formed the first specific plan for alleviating the evils which the inhuman man-trade has occasioned in Africa, 261.

T.

Tamerlane, his cruelty in Hindustan, 435.

Theatre, the German, historical view of, 17.

Thebes, short description of, 358.

Theodosius, abstract of his act for establishing uniformity in religion, 299.

Thompson, Mr. his opinions on the elementary principles of beauty, 413. Specification of these principles, 414.

Tippoo Suliaun, his cruelties, 69. Facts tending to prove his insanity, 436. Comparison between him and his father Hyder Ally, 437.

Tobacco, curious facts relative to the manner of housing, curing, and vending it in Virginia, 210. Instance of the muscular energy and dexterity of the Africans in delivering it, 211. Remarks on the numerous depredations it is liable to, ib.

Travellers, modern, a fact worthy their investigation, 259.

U.

Usurers, petty female, a class little known, some account of, 223.

V.

Various readings in the Hebrew text and Greek version of the Old Testament, instanced and remarked upon, 196, 197.

Vatican, impression of the Septuagint, its excellence asserted, 94.

Voltaire, agonized in his dying moments, 483.

W.

Watering pasturage and meadow grounds, advantages of, 33.

White, Dr. account of, and remarks upon, his Diatessaron, 424, 486.

Wild cattle, in Chillingham Park, curious description of, 113.

Wilson, Dr. his observations on the characteristic symptoms of fever, 49. His arrangement of febrile diseases, method of treatment in the hot and cold stages, and directions concerning the patient's diet during the remission of fever, 51. His use of bark, 143. His remarks on the Brunonian doctrine, 144.

Windsor Great Park, Mr. Kent's account of the agricultural improvements of late years made therein by his Majesty, 60.

Wives, their honour, when thought not worth their own regard, still more unworthy that of their husbands, 55.

Wounds, in legs, cured without rest, by means of rollers properly applied, 249. Flannel rollers far preferable to those of linen or cotton, 252. The subject farther considered, 404.

